DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

ClaimS 1-25 ARE rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for "concrete", does not reasonably provide enablement for a "soiled porous surface". The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to practice the method of the invention directed to a "soiled porous surface" commensurate in scope with these claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Pat. 5,656,683 to Ruggiero et al further in view of US 2002/0065355 to Terasse et al.

The Ruggiero et al '683 reference relates to wetting agents for concrete cleaning and adhesives and discloses a method of cleaning concrete involving a concrete cleaning formulation including, e.g., diethanolamine, NaOH, a silicate, ethylene glycol and water solvent and surfactants (see, Examples 1-6, cols. 7-8) by application of the cleaning formulation for removing grease, dirt, and loose material prior to the application of coatings (see col. 7, line 49 et seq). The concrete surface with the formulation applied can be cleaned with a stiff-bristle brush and then flushed with water (col. 8., line 1 et seq).

To the extent that this reference does not appear to specifically disclose the subsequently applied coating components, at the time of the invention, one of ordinary skill in the subject art would have found it obvious to select such a coating, construed as a "maintainer composition", as disclosed in the Terasse et al '355 reference to be utilized as the subsequently applied coating of the primary reference, the motivation being application of a known "maintainer composition".

The Terasse et al '355 reference relates to floor polishing compositions, as applied to pore-containing substrates such as resin tiles [p.8, 0126] and cement cured material (p. 3, [0050]) comprising an organic high molecular material such as certain copolymer type resins (p.2, [0036], glycol ether type solvent in addition to water (p.2, [0038], and a number of optional additives including a plasticizer, surfactant, slippage adjuster, and coalescing agents such as diethylene glycol monomethyl ether [ p. 3,0046, 0047, 0048] . After coating and drying, the coated film was subjected to a mechanical polishing operation (see, e.g. p. 14, [0222]. No claim stands allowed as no patentable distinction is evident over the art of record.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
